

Let's Get Talking: Giving choices

Welcome to Let's Get Talking. We're here to help you and your child with practical advice and support in developing their speech, language and communication skills.

When learning to talk, giving your child choices is a really great way to get them started.

Offering choices gives them the opportunity to learn and use new words, and you can do it in any situation.

For example, you could say at snack time: "would you like an apple or banana?"

Or at play time: "would you rather play with the puzzle or playdoh?"

And remember, it's really important to show your child the choices while saying the word as this helps them better understand what you're saying.

For more tips and advice to help with your child's talking, take a look at our other videos.